

LUNCH AT THE SINGAPORE BOTANIC GARDEN

The Singapore Botanic Gardens is a national landmark and features a small tropical rainforest, a ginger garden and an orchid garden.

The tropical rainforest is one of among the only few pieces of original jungle left on the island and it's reported to have more than 300 species of flora. The tallest trees stand about 40 metres in height.

This picturesque spot is not only a perfect location to view exotic plants, trees and flowers but also all kinds of colourful birds and insects.

BOTANICAL ORCHID GARDEN

Since 1859, orchids have been closely associated with the Gardens.

With over 1000 species and 2000 hybrids on display, the splendor of these gorgeous blooms is absolutely a sight to behold at the National Orchid Garden.

The products of the Gardens' orchid breeding program, which began in 1928, deserve a place where they can be displayed in all their colours and shape ranges. The very design of these orchids is, one could say, 'hand-crafted' by the Gardens' horticultural staff, dedicated to bringing out the finest in any hybrid cross.

Opening hours : 8.30am - 7.00pm daily (last ticket sales and entry at 6.00pm)
